

2003 SCSHA AWARD RECIPIENTS

Frank R. Kleffner Clinical Career Award

Elaine M. Frank, Ph.D

Dr. Elaine Frank has a distinguished career in both audiology and speech. She has served as chief speech language pathologist at the Dorn's Veterans Hospital, chaired the Communication Sciences and Disorders program at USC, has over 20 publications and numerous abstracts, has obtained board certification in neurologic speech-language pathology, teaches, supervises and mentors, and is a recent ASHA Fellow.

Special Recognition Award

Patricia Nagle

Pat Nagle is a speech language pathologist in Lexington 5. She is recognized for her work with children, offering assistance and advice when needed, providing leadership to her school, and supervision to many students in higher education training programs.

Dr. Tom Smith

Tom Smith is the principal of Springdale Elementary School is recognized for his support of Special Education and speech services, seeks funding, room accommodations and continuing education opportunities for speech language pathologists.

Scott Thompson M.D

Dr. Scott Thompson is the Medical Director and Surgeon for the USC Cochlear Implant Team. He is recognized for raising awareness, publishing, supporting research, assisting parents, patients and families as they work through the cochlear implant process

The Columbia Sertoma Club

The Columbia College Sertoma Club supported SCSHA with a grant for the SCSHA display board

Public School Program of the Year

Kristen Eagerton

Kristen Eagerton is a speech language pathologist for North Augusta Elementary School and Therapy Solutions. She collaborated, implemented, and assisted in training individuals to use a Sound Field Amplification System in the classroom.

Jennifer Mungo Student of the Year Award

Laura Holliday

Laura Holliday is a Columbia College student who has researched and presented with Dr. Leigh Ann Spell.